Garden Club Holds Open House

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomas Moses, Jr., were hosts to members of the Appomattox Garden Club, their husbands and guests, on Sunday afternoon, December 30th, at Open House.

The Moses home was beautifully decorated in traditional Christmas Greens and a profusion of red candles.

Mrs. Moses, President of the Garden Club, was assisted by the Hospitality Committee in preparing and serving refreshments. Mrs. Howlett B. Martin was Chairman of this committee with Mrs. Raymond Jamerson, Mrs. Jesse Carwile, Mrs. Martin Webb, Mrs. Thomas Jamerson, Mrs. Robert Hubbard, Mrs. Thomas Richardson, Mrs. Robert H. Grey, Jr., and Mrs. Dottridge Martin serving with her.

Special guests attending the affair were Mrs. J. D. Allen, President of the Virginia Federation of Garden Clubs, from Lynchburg, Virginia and Mr. and Mrs. William F. S. Gresham also of Lynchburg.

Concord Garden Club

The Concord Garden Club held its December meeting in the home of Mrs. E. T. Burleigh with Mrs. J. T. Burleigh as co-hostess.

The president, Dr. Mae Kelly, conducted a short business meeting and distributed Christmas cards to be signed by members for those who are inactive.

This "One-time-during-the-year" was also Husband's Night. Club members took polyanna gifts as well as a gift for the husbands. No flower arrangements were displayed. Rather, the packages were judged for artistic wrappings, the husbands serving as judges. And what fun they had.

After all gifts were opened the group enjoyed singing Christmas Carols with Mrs. C. R. Carson at the piano.

The Burleigh home with its festive Christmas decorations and atmosphere prepared everyone for the beautiful and delicious refreshments served by the hostesses.

Ribbons were awarded to the following: Blue, Mrs. Kelly Webb; Red, Mrs. J. W. Pratt; Yellow, Mrs. Josephine Booth.

The next club meeting will be on January 14 in the home of Dr. Kelly, with Mrs. Kelly Webb as co-hostess.

The Pastor Speaks

What About This New Year

Plato, the Greek philosopher said, "The beginning is the most important part of the work."

This is true-but what is more important is that the work we begin is important.

The New Year of 1974 is here. Let us resolve to start "a good work."

Let this year be different from years before when we began with fine sounding resolutions, but one-by-one the good beginnings fell to the wayside and were forgotten.

Let us set priorities this year. Resolve to begin "a good work" after we have prayed about it. After we have made the decision, with the help of the Holy Spirit, then we must ask ourselves does this work glorify God? Will it further God's kingdom on earth?

Also let us ask will it witness to our friends, to our neighbor, to the one we meet on the street? Will it witness to the truth that Jesus Christ is both Lord and Saviour.

Yes! Plato was right that the beginning is important. But, of much greater importance is that the work we start is important and it is completed to the glory of God.

This year let our resolutions be to start a "good work" to the glory of Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Put important things first.

"For what will it profit a man, if he gains the whole world and forfeits his life?" Matthew 16:26.

Comment on the International Sunday School lessons for Sunday, January 6, 1974.

Topic: Bread for the Hungry
Scripture: John 6

The bread of God is that which comes down from heaven, and gives life to the world. John 6:33.

In this second of a series of lessons portraying Him in terms of the essentials of life, Jesus is presented as the bread of life. As John reports the dialogue between Jesus and the multitude He had fed from five loaves of barley bread and two fish, Jesus made the claim for Himself and repeated it in response to those who criticized Him for making the claim.

The setting and background are appropriate for presenting Jesus as the bread of life. Jesus and His disciples had gone to an isolated place in the hills on the eastern side of the Sea of Galilee-a part of the range known today as the Golan Heights, scene of which is a major contention between Israel and Syria. A multitude came to Him, and since they were in a place where food could not be readily obtained, Jesus fed them, using the food a boy had brought with him to do so. The feeding of the 5,000 is the first event in the life and ministry of Jesus reported in all four Gospels.

It is not surprising that this multitude of 5,000 men, besides women and children, as Matthew explains, wanted to make Jesus king. He had supplied them with food in simple supply, a basic human need. In far-away Rome, a large element in the population was unemployed, and the government supplied these people with free bread. Political candidates vied with each other in promising food and in entertaining the Roman mob at elaborate spectacles, such as gladiatorial fights and chariot races. Elections were won, and politicians built careers as public officials through exploiting panem et circenses - bread and the shows - the wants of the element in the Roman populace.

No doubt the people of Galilee had heard of the unemployed at Rome, fed at public expense and entertained at the expense of candidates and government. Now they had found one who could provide bread for them for which they would not have to work, and they were eager to make Him their king, for He fulfilled their traditional, but mistaken, concept of Messian: "This is indeed the prophet who is to come into the world!"

Such an intent did not accord with Jesus' purpose or the true nature of His kingship or Messiahship. He quietly withdrew into the hills, but the people who had been fed did not give up so easily. They sought and found Him in Capernaum on the other side of the Sea of Galilee. Jesus rebuked them for looking for Him for the purpose they did: because He had provided them with earthly bread. They reminded Him that their ancestors had been fed in the wilderness with bread from heaven, an answer Jesus used to explain that God gives the true bread from heaven which gives life to the world and that He is that bread.

Not even His disciples could understand what Jesus meant when He told His critics, "I am the living bread which came down from heaven; if anyone eats of this bread, he will live forever; and the bread which I shall give for the life of the world is my flesh." Jesus' use of practical, physical terms to explain spiritual truths can, as it did then, lead to misunderstanding or fail to enlighten. His hearers took Jesus' words literally and missed their meaning. Some disciples followed Him no longer, but through their spokesman, Peter, the twelve declared their loyalty, "Lord, to whom shall we go? You have the words of eternal life..."

Just as food sustains physical life by making possible body growth and energy, there is a spiritual food necessary for spiritual growth and spiritual energy. Jesus provides this spiritual food, in the redemption He accomplished through which believers are brought into the household of God. Without God, human needs are not fully satisfied, for a person must come into a proper relationship with God through commitment of life to Him to develop to fullest potential. Without God, no life is well rounded. Jesus opens the way for the individual to come to God in commitment and dedication of life. Thus He provides the food which nourishes the spirit of man and makes it possible for the person to grow and to be active spiritually.

Question & Answer Column

Q - My 20 year old attended college full time two months last winter, stopped out to go to work, returned to school full time September. He earned about $3,000 during the year. Can I still claim him as a dependent?

A - Yes, if he meets all dependency tests, including your having provided over half of his total support. If the son is a full-time student for some part of each of five months of the year, there is no limit on how much he can earn and still remain your dependent. These five months do not have to occur consecutively.

Q - I know that a political contribution to a candidate or his campaign committee may be eligible for a deduction or credit. What about contributions to a political party?

A. Contributions to a national, state or local committee of a national political party may also qualify for the deduction or credit.

You may deduct up to $100 on a joint return) or one-half of your contribution (up to $12.50 ($25 on a joint return).

"The South 40" by James A. Smith Extension Agent

Its not to early to book Essax soybean seed for spring planting. This is as new variety that is done extremely well in test throughout the Southeast. 1974 is the first year that this variety has been available for the commercial producer. Seed suppliers are limited.

* * *

Seed catalogs are coming in - for most home gardners there is the problem of which variety to select:

Tomatoes are the most popular of all vegetables. Based on work done in Virginia last year the following are the best tomato varieties:

Star VF - ground or stake - short cage - midseason

Supersonic "B" VF - Stake or trellis-late midseason.

Burpee VF - Short stake or short cage - midseason

Better Boy VFN - 4 ' stake or cage - midseason

Delsher - Stake or trellis - Midseason

CAL Ace - ground - stake or short cage

Ramap VF - Very tall, late - stake or trellis

Sunray - Yellow, stake or cage

Campbell 1327 VF - early, ground or short cage

Terrific VFN - Stake, cage or trellis - Midseason

Ramapo VF, Delsher and Better Boy VFN are somewhat tolerant to early blight, but must be sprayed for control of early blight.

VF stands for resistance to Verticillium and Fusari u m

VFN indicates that the variety also includes nematode resistance.

Short cage signifies a cage that is 2½ feet tall. Standard cages are 4 to 5 tall.

The varieties listed above would give higher yields, better disease resistance and flavor.

Tomato varieties giving high yields and low cost percentages are possible by the use of plastic, vine support and rigid weekly spray program for disease control. A production program that omitts any one of these 3 practices can expect reduced yields and quality.

Tomatoes should be spaced 2 feet apart in the row x 5 feet between rows. Use 1500 pounds of 5 - 20-10 broadcast and disked in prior to laying black plastic.
